

No Cases Report Today

There will be no cases report today. There is confusion in the results. Interestingly Sid Lentz asked a few days ago if positive antibody tests were counted as positive. The answer is the state/county only counts positive PCR as confirmed (swab and saliva both use PCR).

Recently however, a lab or labs have submitted positive antigen and antibody as confirmed positive for COVID. This confused the system so the county was unable to report today's results to me. They are sorting through it. I talked to the County Health Officer for half an hour so I could understand it. She thinks the number of PCR confirmed positives will be 7 or 8.

Just letting you know what she told me. It may wind up differently. Seven or eight would be consistent with the large number of tests we are performing.
