To sign up go to this web site. Click on the red banner. You be asked to sign on with a Google account. You must agree to privacy information. On that page you will learn about the test. It's worth reading.

Your data will be shared with Verily Life Sciences. Verily Life Sciences was formerly a Google company. The sign up site is a Google site.

You will enter your name, date of birth, sex, phone number and address. You will then enter ethnicity and race questions. Next are medical questions.

You will then be told if you are eligible. You are then asked to schedule a test. I didn't want to be tested so I stopped there.

The test is a self-collected nasal swab performed at the drive up window. Your results will be sent to you by email (I learned with a phone call). Rite Aid offers no medical guidance.
